

Revised History

Do Democrats Plan To Steal The Election?

By Al Benson September 8, 2020

The title of this article is a rhetorical question. Sort of like asking who is buried in Grant's tomb. Most of my readers already know the answer though some may not know how they plan to do it.

In yesterday's article I mentioned something called the Transition Integrity Project. An article posed by William A. Jacobson on <https://legalinsurrection.com> on 9/3/20 is quite revelatory.

Mr. Jacobson writes: "The Red Mirage theory, recently floated by a Democratic data firm and promoted by Axios, predicts that Trump will have a large lead on Election Night that will evaporate in the ensuing weeks as mail-in ballots are counted. It provides a ground upon which Democrats will refuse to concede the election either Election Night or the following day. Rather, the claimed certainty that there is a wave of Biden mail-in votes yet to be counted is all Democrats will need to make a concerted post-Election Day effort to steal the election."

If this is true, and at this point I have no reason to doubt Mr. Jacobson or the two writers I quoted yesterday, how do the Democrats already know all those mail-in ballots coming in so late will be for Biden. Or even a majority of them? I expect there would have to be a handful of "Trump votes" in there just to make it look legitimate. The fact that the Democrats plan to do what they are doing indicates to those of us with suspicious minds that they already know what will be contained in most of those mail-in votes. All the more reason for those that can to show up at the polls on Election Day and vote in person.

Jacobson also observed: "There was also something called the Transition Integrity Project (TIP), a supposedly 'bipartisan' but the Republican side represented by the likes of Michael Steele and Bill Kristol, devoted Never Trumpers. So the TIP is the Democrat/Never Trump version of what might happen. TIP released a report, and almost every scenario they outline involves Democrat refusing to accept the Election Night result, indeed, the election result at all. They blame Trump for Democrats refusal to accept the election in a perverse justification for planning to refuse a Trump win." This is a classic example of cultural Marxism at work—blame your opposition for what you are doing yourself. At this point the Democrats have been so penetrated by Marxist ideology they are probably incapable of doing anything else.

There was a time in our history, 150 years ago, when the Democrats were the conservatives and the Republicans were the socialists. Now both parties are socialist. Where does that leave the American people? The political establishment in both parties has sold us out to the Deep State. Outside of Trump and a handful of dedicated patriots we have no friends in Washington—only those who want to sell this country out.