Is Amerika Really a One-Party State?

By Al Benson Jr., June 24th, 2022

Awhile back, when people still hoped I had money, I used to get these letters from some of our Congress critters that said, basically, “Send me some money and vote for me so I can protect you from those liberal Democrats.” It was a clever charade and it probably fooled lots of folks. I often asked the question “Who will protect us from the liberal Republicans?” I never did get an answer to that one. But then I already knew the answer—no one!

So it was with interest that I read an article on <https://www.lewrockwell.com> for June 24th that was titled The GOP Wants to Lose the Mid-Terms. The writer was an independent journalist and she pretty well had it figured out.

She wrote: “This week brought yet another example of the GOP’s complete ideological collapse. The Senate just passed an unconstitutional ‘red flag’ gun control bill last night with the help of 14 GOP senators—and they did so while Democrat activists were still illegally harassing Supreme Court Justices at their private homes...They did so while the GOP’s chief pansy Mitch McConnell was still complaining that Democrats refused to pass legislation for extra security to protect Supreme Court Justices! What greater signal could the GOP establishment send that it has no interest in defending the lives of its own judges—let alone its own voters?”

And one of those 14 sellout senators was Bill Cassidy from here in Louisiana. Cassidy seems to vote with the Democrats quite often anymore. I’m really beginning to think he’s a Democrat with a Republican coat on to cover his true colors. Anyway, the article continued: “Ask yourself; why would 14 Republican senators sell out the Second Amendment rights of their own voters just before a widely-predicted ‘red wave’ arrives this November? Why would the GOP establishment surrender to Democrats over the single most important issue for their own party right before a mid-term election that could put them back in control of the House and the Senate? The answer is obvious: the GOP establishment has no interest in being the ruling party.”

So, folks, don’t be too surprised when November rolls around if the Republican establishment shows less than lukewarm interest in routing the socialist Democrats out of office. The article observed, accurately, I think, that: “Let’s face facts: the GOP doesn’t care to function properly even as an opposition party in the minority. We are living through the darkest period in American history since the Civil War—and the GOP establishment has continually come to the rescue of the Biden regime to make things worse.”

Way back over fifty years ago, when George Wallace ran for president as an independent, he said of the two major political parties “Tweedle-dum and Tweedle-dee. There’s not a dime’s worth of difference between them.” Wallace was right. Both parties are controlled by the One World Government clique that currently runs the country and they will both only promote whatever promotes that agenda. That was one reason they had to get rid of Trump and one reason they are working so hard to make sure he can’t come back.

If you want to know who really runs the country then check out how many members of the Council on Foreign Relations have been a major part of every administration, Republican or Democrat, for as long as any of us can remember. The John Birch Society has been saying this same thing for years and the establishment hopes not too many of you are paying attention.

The article concludes: "You would have to be out of your mind to still believe that the GOP establishment is fighting against the Biden regime—as America dissolves before your very eyes into a tyrannical state ruled by a corporate oligarchy. In fact, the GOP establishment is openly fighting alongside Democrats to maintain uni-party rule. These people don't think they're our representatives—they're our rulers."

So don't look for much help from the GOP establishment during the mid-terms because the GOP establishment is part of the One-Party State and they will sell us out in a New York minute and never think twice about it. After all, it's what they do.
